

SW+A, in conjunction with a local development company, The Randolph Group, planned and designed a unique residential community in upstate South Carolina.

Carilion is located in Greenville County's fastest growing north side near Furman University and the prestigious Green Valley Country Club. The development seeks to reflect the comfort and elegance of traditional neighborhood design with components such as sidewalks, street trees, alleyways, a large central park and smaller pocket parks, along with more conventional amenities such as a swimming pool and bathhouse.

A remarkable balance of built areas and open space has been achieved with 248 homesites. Nearly 85 acres of parks, playgrounds, gardens, and trails are spread throughout the project.
